PUBLISHER'S NOTE

In the following pages it has been our aim to give within moderate limits an account of the principal events in the history of the village of Petersburg. We do not flatter ourselves that the work has been perfectly done, but as much as could be obtained from imperfect records, and that which has come from various other sources has been recorded:

We wish to thank the people of Petersburg and vicinity for their hearty and unanimous support, which has made possible the success of this enterprise.

THE ABORIGINES

The first inhabitants of South Jersey, so far as history reveals, were Indians, the Lenni-Lenape or Dalaware branch of the Algonquins, whose home was originally in Ottawa, and whose last king, Nummy, is buried on Nummy Island, near Hereford Inlet. It is said that after his death all the Indians in this part of the country migrated to the banks of the Wabash river in Indiana. The name of the tribe living in Cape May county was the "Kechemechs."*

The houses or wigwams were sometimes together in towns, but were mostly movable, and occasionally built near a spring or other water, according to the conveniences for hunting, fishing, basket-making, or other business of that sort, and were built with poles laid on forked sticks set in the ground, with bark, flags, or bushes on the top and sides, with an opening to the South, their fire in the middle. Their clothing was a coarse blanket or skin thrown over the shoulder, which covered to the knee, and a piece of the same tied around their legs, with part of a deer-skin sewed round their feet for shoes.†

They long remembered kindnesses and seldom forgot to be grateful where benefits had been received, and on many occasions gave irrefragable proofs of liberality of sentiment, hospitality of action and impressions that seemed to promise a continuation of better things.†

existed on two or three occasions. In 1630, thirty-two men were killed on the Delaware by the Indians, and they, refusing to surrender the authors of the crimes, brought on hostilities. In 1664 peace was permanently restored.

In 1755 a serious outbreak occurred. In 1758 a conference took place at Burlington with representatives from the several tribes, which resulted in another conference being held at Easton, Pa., at the request of the Indians; that being, as they termed it, "the place of the old council fire," where amicable relations were restored which remained undisturbed for several years.*

In 1757 an act was passed by legislature appropriating £1600 for the purchase of Indian claims; but the Indians living South of the Raritan preferred receiving their portion in land specially allotted for their occupancy, and harmony appears to have prevailed between the Indians and the whites.*

THE DISCOVERERS—THE PROPRIETORS

In January, 1609, the directors of the Dutch East India Company contracted with Henry Hudson to fit out a vessel of sixty tons burden for a voyage to India via Nova Zembla. He gave his crew, consisting of twenty men, the choice of two routes of seeking the Northwest passage, but storms interfered and they were driven Southwest and in July reached Newfoundland, and sailed thence down the coast of Maine. Reaching Cape Cod, he named it New Holland. On August 28th, he reached the coast of Maryland, and, moving Northward along the shore, he entered the Delaware bay on August 29th, and coasted along New Jersey's shore. On September 3d, he passed Sandy Hook and anchored in New York bay. Sailing up the Hudson river as far as Troy, he found the river too shallow to proceed farther, and on September 23d, he returned Southward and on October 4th, sailed out from Sandy Hook for Dartmouth, England, where he arrived on November 7th. Here he was detained for a time by the English, finally arriving at Amsterdam in July, 1610.*

In 1612 five ships were despatched for further exploration and trade. Among the officers of these were Henry Christiansen, Adriaen Block and Cornelius Jacobson May. Captain May, whose vessel had been fitted out at Hoorn, Holland, explored the Southern coast of Long Island, which he found to be twenty-five Dutch miles in length. He also sailed along the coast of New Jersey, and he or later Dutchmen named Cape May.

*"Romance of Discovery," by Wm. Elliot Griffis.

In 1615 Captain Cornelius Hendrickson, in the ship "Restless," sailed along the coast of New Jersey, giving the name "Eyerhaven" (haven of eggs) to what is now called Egg Harbor.

Upon these various voyages Holland set up her claim to the country which she named "New Netherlands," extending from Cape Cod to Cape Henlopen.*

In 1629 the Southern part of New Netherlands was granted to two Dutch patrons named Godyn and Blomert, but they made no attempt to settle the country.

The English crown had never recognized the claims of the Dutch to the country, and an armament in command of Richard Nicolls was sent out, and he demanded of Governor Stuyvesant the surrender of the country. The Dutch chose to save their homes rather than to risk losing them in war, and on September 8, 1664, New Amsterdam was surrendered and the New Netherlands ceased to exist.

In 1664, King Charles II made a grant of the country as far south as the Delaware to his brother, James, Duke of York. The latter granted the province between the Hudson and the Delaware rivers to Lord Berkeley and Sir George Carteret. In honor of the latter, who was governor of the Isle of Jersey, this American domain was named New Jersey.

Berkeley and Carteret at first held the property jointly, but later Berkeley sold his share to Edward Billinge, who found it necessary to assign for the benefit of his creditors. William Penn was one of the assignees, and the State was held jointly by Carteret and Penn as agents for Billinge. It was mutually agreed by Carteret and Penn to separate the country into East and West Jersey, Penn and his associates receiving the latter,

*Ridpath's History of the United States.

In 1687 Dr. Coxe, of London, who had already become a large land-holder, purchased of the heirs of Billinge their interests in the soil and government. In 1688, he also having become an acknowledged West Jersey Proprietor, purchased 90,000 acres of land in Cape May County. In 1691 he made an agreement with a body of forty-eight persons, designated as the West Jersey Society, to sell his property, and the following year it was conveyed to them for the sum of £90,000. This society, through their agents, continued to make sales of land until 1756.

EARLY SETTLEMENT

A trading station had been established at Bergen in 1618, but the first permanent settlement was made at Elizabethtown in 1664. In 1623 Fort Nassau was built where Timber Creek empties into the Delaware River, by Captain May, and he was made governor of New Netherlands. The fort was soon abandoned, however, and his company returned to Holland.

In the early days of the Colony, the wild coast, from Sandy Hook to Cape May was uninhabited, save by isolated and often temporary settlements of beach men. Until well within the eighteenth century pirates lay at the entrance of the Delaware Bay and off Sandy Hook. The first settlement of the seashore front of Cape May County was due to the shad fisheries. Cattle raising was an important industry in the early days of the county.*

Colonists from New England and Long Island came to Cape May as early as 1638, as is shown by a deed recording a purchase of land from the Indians by Capt. Nathaniel Turner, which bears the date of November 24th, 1638.

In 1691 Cape May was beginning to settle very fast; seemed to hold out good advantages to the adventurer.†

In November, 1682, Cape May was erected into a county, "being a place well situate for trade," its boundaries including the present Maurice River Township in Cumberland and the southwest portion of the modern Atlantic County.

Daniel Leeds in his "Almanack" for the year 1701 says:

"The freeholders in Cape May County in September, 1699 were seventy."

In 1726 there were in Cape May County: White males above sixteen years of age, 209; females, do., 156; white males under sixteen years of age, 148; females, do., 141; total whites, 654; colored males above sixteen years of age, 8; females, do., 5; colored males under sixteen years of age, 1; females, do., 0; total colored, 14. Total number of inhabitants, 668.*

THE YOUNG FAMILY*

Henry Young, the first of the name in the county, was an Englishman. "He was impressed, when very young, on a man-of-war, from which he made his escape to a vessel bound to Philadelphia. Here, to elude pursuit, he was secreted in a hogshead in the hold of the vessel, and as soon as they got to sea, he was released, but not until nearly exhausted for want of fresh air." (Quotation from Stevens' History of Cape May County, which agrees, in the main, with the family tradition regarding him.)

After landing in this country, he made his way to Long Island, where he associated himself with the whalers residing there. With these men, he made whaling voyages to Cape May, the party making their headquarters at the whaling settlement of "Cape Town," or "Town Bank."

The old Cape May County records, on file in the Secretary's office at Trenton, give the name of Henry Young as one of those "known to be whalers," who came to Cape May prior to 1700. His name does not appear in the list of those who located land prior to 1700, and it seems probable that he did not permanently settle in the county until about 1707, in which year his "ear-mark" for branding cattle was recorded.

His property, or plantation, as it was then styled, was located where the Palermo station of the Reading Railway now stands, and extended in a westerly direction to Cedar Swamp Creek, within the present limits of Petersburg.

*Written by Ray Wynn.

Henry Young was a man of considerable education, as is evinced by certain of his papers which are still in existence and by the various positions of responsibility which he held under the Colonial Government and the West Jersey Society.

He was King's (or Colony) Surveyor in 1716, Deputy Surveyor for the West Jersey Society in the years 1727, '29, '30, '33, '35, '39, '45, '46 and '50, according to surveys and drafts now in the possession of the Young family, and, probably in other years as well, as the list of drafts and surveys is rather incomplete. It is said that he used the mariner's compass in making his surveys and that he did work upon the old Coxe survey. He was Commissioner of the Peace in 1722 and 1733: Sheriff, 1722-'23; Loan Officer, 1733-'42, '46-'53 and '65; Surrogate, 1741-'67; Judge of the Court of Cape May County, 1722-'67; Member of the New Jersey Assembly, 1730, '33-'40, '44 and '45; Major of Cape May and Salem Regiment, Militia of the Province, 1739; Colonel in Militia in "King George's War." 1748; Colonel in Regiment of Foot in Canadian Expedition, French and Indian War, 1756. He was also a scrivener. Beasley, in his "Early History of Cape May County," says of him: "Judge Young was an extensive land-holder. He was a surveyor and scrivener; and no one of those times was more highly respected, or acted a more prominent or useful part."

He was married three times, the names of his first two wives being at present unknown; his third wife was Phoebe Norton, from the lower part of the county. He died April 8th, 1767. and was buried in the family burying ground upon his plantation, at what is now Palermo. Of this burying ground, which stood back of the present school house at Palermo, no trace now remains, the wooden and stone markers having rotted away or been removed.

So far as can be ascertained from the old records, he had the following children: Abigail, married Joseph Ludlam; Phoebe, married William Robinson; Deborah, married first, Cornelius Hand, second, Jeremiah Hand, third, Clement Daniels; Stephen, married Anne; Job, married Mary Norton; Henry, 2d, married Millicent Townsend; Tabitha, married John Townsend; Uriah, married Rachel Griffing; Elizabeth, married Col. John Mackev; Millicent, single.

Henry Young, 2d, born March 5th, 1746, inherited, among other things, the tract fronting upon the Cedar Swamp Creek between the mouth of Sluice Creek and a small creek below the present Upper Bridge, and extending in an easterly direction to the Butter and Old Landing roads. Here, at no great distance from the road leading from the Lower to the Upper Bridge across Cedar Swamp Creek, he built himself a house, of which at the present day, nothing but the cellar remains.

He served during the Revolutionary war, being an Ensign in Capt. James Willets Jr.'s Company, Cape May Battalion, New Jersey Militia.

He died November 6th, 1795, at the old homestead near Sluice Creek, and is buried in the Young family burying ground upon the place now owned by William Tyler. His wife was Millicent Townsend, daughter of Samuel Townsend, and is buried beside him.

Their children were: Seth, married Martha Steelman; Samuel Townsend, married Olive Pedrick; Henry, 3d, married Whilamina Pedrick; Alexander, married Abigail VanGilder; Stephen married Millicent Badcock; Millicent, married John Stites.

Upon the death of Henry Young, 2d, his property was divided into six portions. His son, Stephen, born October 13th, 1780, inherited the old homestead near Sluice Creek, and lived there from the time of his marriage until about 1812 or 1813, at which time he built a house at the Lower Bridge, where he had for some years conducted a shipyard and a general store; the former being located upon the east side of Cedar Swamp Creek, a short distance below the Lower Bridge, and the latter at the eastern end of the bridge. The original store is the kitchen of the present house. At the time that Stephen Young moved from the property on Sluice Creek to the Lower Bridge, he built a new store, now used as a cottage upon the property, and standing beside the wharf. He also built a house in front of the old store. Later, when the needs of his family required it, he built the eastern wing of the house as it now stands.

He was an extensive builder of vessels and for many years conducted a trade with the West Indies, using his own schooners to carry it on. The hull of one of his vessels, the "Niagara," still lies upon the west bank of the creek, a short distance below the Lower Bridge.

In his younger days Stephen Young was a sea captain. He held a number of public positions: Member of the Board of Freeholders, 1823, '29-'33, '45, '47-'49 and '54; Justice of the Peace, 1814-'25, Judge of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas, 1847; Postmaster at Petersburg, or Littleworth as it was then called, on two separate occasions previous to 1856, at which time he was succeeded in office by Peter Corson. He served in the War of 1812-15, in the Militia of Cape May County, in defense of the seacoast.

He died October 16th, 1857, at the Lower Bridge. His wife, who was Millicent, daughter of Joseph Badcock, died November 30th, 1865. Both are buried in the Seaside Cemetery, Palermo, N. J.

They had the following children. Sarah, married Joshua Swain, Jr.; Phoebe, married Benjamin I. Wynn; Millicent, married Lewis P. Kinsey; Reuben, married Emma Corson; Joseph, married Harriet B. Wales; Henry, married Jane S. Towusend; Rachel, single, Eleanor, single; and Eliza, single.

Of these children, Reuben, born October 26th, 1803, lived upon the property at Cedar Springs, now owned and occupied by Miss Sallie B. Young, until his death, which occurred February 2d, 1842. He was killed by a falling log in the saw mill which then stood upon the Mackey place, now the residence of Miss Millicent Young. His family afterward moved to Middletown. He is buried in the Seaside Cemetery at Palermo.

Joseph Young, born December 1st, 1807, succeeded his brother, Reuben, upon the property at Cedar Springs. He died June 10th, 1889. His wife died October 27th, 1889. Both are buried in the Seaside Cemetery.

They had six children: Edmund L. B. W., married first Mary Smith, second Elizabeth Rand; Bentley W., married Judith Morris; Howard married Levisa Smith; Josephine, married David Cresswell; Sarah B., single; Mary E. single.

Bentley W. and Sarah B. Young lived upon the old place. Bentley W. Young died November 2d, 1907, and is buried in Petersburg Churchyard.

Henry Young, born February 16th, 1813, located upon the Mackey place, where he died March 4th, 1890. His wife died January 7th, 1899. Both are buried at Calvary Cemetery, Ocean View, N. J. They had two children: Stephen T., and Millicent.

Stephen T. (1840-1912), son of Henry and Jane S. Young, married Margaret Reed, and had three children: Harriet, died in infancy; Henry, married Hannah Endicott; Rachel, married William Loughlin, and has three children, William, Margaret and Robert.

The Young family have been property owners in Petersburg from a date prior to the settlement of the place, down to the present day, and residents for nearly as long a period, their having been six generations of them in a direct line of descent.

The original Young plantation came down to the eastern bunk of Cedar Swamp Creek. As previously stated, Henry Young, 2d, inherited a portion of this property, his half-brother, Job Young, and his half-sister, Tabitha, who married John Townsend, inheriting the rest. The western limit of Job Young's property was about where the present Upper Bridge over Cedar Swamp Creek stands. So far as is known, the property inherited by Tabitha Townsend did not come within the limits of Petersburg.

Seth, a son of Henry Young, 2d, lived for several years upon the property now belonging to William Tyler. He afterward moved to the Shore Road, where he lived in the house occupied by Smith Marshall, a Palermo.

Samuel Townsend Young, Seth's brother, also lived upon the Tyler place, afterward moving to the vicinity of Palermo. He was killed by a runaway team upon the Shore Road.

It is said that Henry Young, 3d, another brother of Seth, lived for a time upon the place, afterward moving to Middletown. He was killed in a runaway accident upon the Tuckahoe road above Petersburg.

Seth Young, Samuel T. Young and Henry Young, 3d, are buried in the old Young burying ground upon the Tyler place. The wives of the last two named are buried in the Methodist churchyard at Marmora, both of them, according to family tradition, being opposed to being "buried in the open fields."

Both Joseph and Henry, sons of Stephen Young, were sea captains in their earlier days. After quitting the sea, they farmed extensively, and Henry was also interested in the manufacture of brick, having a yard for that purpose upon the Mackey place.

THE MACKEY FAMILY*

Among the more prominent of the old families of Petersburg was the Mackey family, now extinct in the direct line.

John Mackey, the first of the name in the county was a Quaker, of Irish, or Scotch-Irish descent. He came between the years 1740 and 1745, and after several years spent in the southern end of the county, in the vicinity of Cape May Court House, located upon what is now known as the Mackey place, in Petersburg.

According to the New Jersey Archives, he married, on April 25th, 1746, Elizabeth, daughter of Judge Henry Young. He became an extensive landholder, and, so far as known, occupied the following public positions: Freeholder; 1764; Justice of the Peace, 1767; Justice of the Court of Oyer and Terminer, 1773; Lieutenant Colonel, Cape May County Militia, 1771. In 1777 he was elected by the people Colonel of the Cape May County Regiment, and probably served with the battalion in the battle of Germantown. He resigned his commission in March, 1778, being succeeded by Colonel Nicholas Stillwell. He was Commissioner of the Peace in 1777.

Colonel Mackey's wife died suddenly of heart disease, sometime prior to 1784. The Colonel died in September, 1784. Both himself and wife were buried in the family burying ground upon the Mackey place.

Until quite recently the place of their burial was in doubt; but through the researches of the late Dr. Zelopherd Hand, of Montclair, N. J., a descendant of the Colonel, it was definitely shown that it could only be upon the Mackey place. At that time it became known that Mr. Stephen T. Young had discovered what appeared to be a gravestone, while plowing in one of the lower fields some twelve years before. In the fall of 1910 an effort was made to locate this stone and it was finally found. In the spring of 1911 another stone, evidently the marker of the grave of Mrs. Mackey was found within a few feet of the first one. The stones had either fallen, or had been turned down and plowed under by someone who was cultivating the field. The burying ground is located southeast of the present house near the edge of the woods. in accordance with the Friends' custom, the stones are plain markers with no lettering upon them. They are irregularly triangular in shape and roughly hewn from the quartz rock which is more or less common in that section.

Colonel Mackey and his wife had six children: Abigail, married Captain James Willets; Martha, married Darius Corson; Tabitha, married Captain Hope Willets; Phoebe, married first, Joseph Badcock, second, Joseph Corson; Elizabeth, married Henry, son of Job and Mary Young, and grandson of Judge Young; John, married Elizabeth

John Mackey, Jr., born 1764, died December 13th, 1837, inherited all of the Mackey property in Cape May County, including the plantation of 746 acres, known as the Mackey place. He never added to his possessions, but was repeatedly selling his property in order to raise ready money. A short time before his death, he conveyed the last of his property to Thomas Williams, of Tuckahoe, in return for "the comfortable support of the said John Mackey for and during his natural life." From this it can only be inferred that he led a life of idleness and ease. His life of self-indulgence and lack of initiative leads to the conclusion that he was not a tower of strength in time of distress. (Note.--- The above is taken from data collected by Dr. Hand.) Both John Mackey and his wife were buried in the Aetna Cemetery, at the Head of the River.

John Mackey, Jr., had three children: Elizabeth, married John Williams, of Tuckahoe; Sarah, married Joseph Corson: John, 3d, according to Dr. Hand, died without issue.

Of Abigail, Martha Elizabeth and Tabitha Mackey, daughters of Colonel John Mackey, but little is known.

Phoebe Mackey, daughter of the Colonel; who married as her first husband, Joseph Badcock, lived in a house which stood about where the Butter Road joins the road leading from the Lower Bridge to Marmora. The house has long since disappeared.

Joseph Badcock was the grandson of Joseph Badcock, who came to Cape May County and purchased land of the Company in London in or about 1691; and who died about 1709-'10. He served as a private in Captain James Willets, Jr's., company of the Cape May County Battalion, New Jersey Militia. He was afterward lost at sea and his widow married Joseph Corson, by whom she had six children, four sons and two daughters. By her first marriage with Joseph Badcock, she had two daughters, one of whom, Millicent, married Stephen Young, of the Lower Bridge.

In connection with the old Mackey plantation, there is an interesting note in Jacob Spicer's diary, under date of February 22, 1757: "John Mackey's house is 40x20, single story, with hip, for which Joseph Edwards is to get the timber, frame, cover, make the window frames, sashes, put in the lights, make the outside doors and lay the floors for £16, and find himself and workmen. Mackey to find the lath sawed and shingle fit for covering." This house stood to the northeast of the present house upon the Mackey place and faced south.

The Mackey place was sold to Smith Hand, and after his death it came into the possession of Charles Hand, of whom it was purchased by Stephen Young, of the Lower Bridge. At the latter's death it was divided among certain of his heirs.

The John Mackey house was burned in midwinter, and the occupants, the family of Willets Wheaton, were compelled to seek shelter as best they could. The central portion of the present house stood back of the present site, and when the front part was built in 1840 it was erected in the middle of a wheat field, and the old house, which stood at some distance was moved up to it. The brick, excepting those used in the front wall, was burned upon the place, and the master mason, John Barker, who laid from 2,500 to 3,000 per day, received eighty-five cents for a day's work. Later, the rear part of the house was added by Henry Young.*

*Stephen T. Young.

THE VAN GILDER FAMILY*

Some centuries ago there was in the Netherlands a province called Gelderland, and it is thought that the people who went from that province came to be called by it, "van" indicating from. The name of this family appears in various spellings: Van Gelder, van Gelder, Van Guilder and VanGilder, the latter spelling being now the more generally used.

The VanGilders, four brothers, came to America with the VanRensaeleers, John settling in New York, then called New Amsterdam, and was among those who in about 1674 owned houses and lots on the present east side of Broadway, between Beaver and Wall Street, then known as a part of Marketfield and Broadway,† which he purchased of Adam Oucleburgh between the years 1665 and 1672.‡ Gerrit VanGelder also seems to have settled in New York, and was a member of the Dutch church, he living on Parel Straat (Pearl Street), between State and Whitehall Streets. Abraham settled at Kaatsbaan, in Ulster County, New York; and on the records of the church of Kaatsbaan appears the birth of a child, Aalye, April 14, 1698. Another brother settled near where the city of Albany now stands previous to 1683.

John and Abraham VanGilder, probably sons of John VanGiider, of New York, with their families, left Long Island* in a sloop, and sailing down the coast as far as Great Egg Harbor Inlet, came up what is now known as the Tuckahoe River and the Cedar Swamp Creek. When they got as far as Half-Way Creek, night overtaking them they anchored; and there the first VanGilder was born in the county. They then came up as far as what was known in early days as "Fast Landing." That land not suiting them, they went up to the farm lately owned by Rev. James Vansant, now the property of Mrs. William Margeson, where they built a cave and with their families lived in it. They bought land of the West Jersey Society, and commenced to clear it up. Abraham made the remark, "this land is of little worth," hence the place was called "Littleworth."

Abraham built a log house and lived where he first settled. He left two sons, David and Ezekiel.

David, son of Abraham VanGilder, married Ann, daughter of William Shaw, and built on the farm now owned by Somers Sack. He had three sons, Amasa, Ezekiel and Cornelius. The latter married Elizabeth Ingersoll and died young, leaving one son, Cornelius.

John VanGilder, the ancestor of all by that name now living in Cape May County, built a log house on the property now owned by the Petersburg Development Company. He owned a large tract of land and also located several large tracts of cedar swamp, which he also bought of the West Jersey Society. We have no means of knowing the date of his death, but he was buried in the family burying ground on the farm of H. P. Mickel. His will bears the date of October 8, 1772.* He had four sons and one daughter: John, Abraham, Isaac, Jeremiah and Naamah, who married first James Mickel, second, Benajah Tomlin.

John, son of John VanGilder, married Hannah Scull. While in the woods he met with an accident which resulted in his death. So far as is known, he left no descendants. His will, made February 2d, 1799 and proved the 9th of April following, mentions his brothers, Abraham and Isaac, and his nephews, James and Robert Mickel, and John, Jr., and Isaac VanGilder. The latter two are named as executors.

Abraham, son of John VanGilder, was a member of the Second Company Cape May Battalion of Militia in the Revolutionary War. He married first, Martha Hand, second, Mary Aleuit. He sold his property and migrated to the West. Some of his descendants now live in the State of Illinois.

Jeremiah, son of John VanGilder, served in the Second Company of Cape May Militia in the Revolutionary War. He married Sarah Bishop, and so far as is known had no children.

Isaac, son of John VanGilder, built on the land lately owned by the heirs of Willis Young. He was in 1777 a member of the Second Company of the Cape May Battalion of Militia. His wife's name was Mary He left four sons: John, Ezekiel, Isaac, and a fourth who was killed while felling timber in the cedar swamp.

John, 1771-1826, son of Isaac VanGilder, married Lydia, 1774-1850, daughter of Thomas French, in 1794. He was a man of energy, and accumulated a great deal of land. He made a business of getting out cedar lumber and hauling to Dennis Creek, and was instrumental in building the bank over Cedar Swamp Creek. He had five children: John, 1809-1892, was a cripple and never married; Hannah; Sarah, 1807-1875, married David Williams; Thomas; Letitia, 1795-1864, married Richard Weatherby.

Hannah, 1799-1845, daughter of John VanGilder, 3d, married James Smith, 1797-1888, and lived on the Madara place. Their children were, Jeremiah, Frank, Hannah Ann, married first, Enoch Williams, second, Manluff Williams; Sarah Jane, married Captain Frank Gandy, of the Shore Road; Adelaide, married Captain Benjamin Gandy, of Tuckahoe; Lewis, married Adelaide Young, and lived at Tuckahoe after his marriage.

Thomas, 1803-1879, son of John VanGilder, 3d, was Sheriff of Cape May County, 1841-4; Freeholder, 1846-53. He married first, Sarah Garwood, second, Mary Garwood, her sister, and had seven children: Thaddeus, Thomas L., Emeline, married Anthony Steelman; Anna, married Townsend Young; Leonora, married first, James Johnson, second, Henry Rittenhouse; John S. married Mary Gandy.

Thaddeus, 1831-1881, son of Thomas VanGilder, married Hannah Hand. Their children are William R., Sarah Ann, married Hon. John Huffman; Cora, married Edmund Bennett.

William R., son of Thaddeus VanGilder married Eva S. Corson, and has three children: Sophie, deceased; Thaddeus, married Julia Bailey, and has one son, Burrows; and W. Rolland.

Isaac, son of Isaac VanGilder, married Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob Willits in 1799. He was First Sergeant in the Cape May Independent Infantry in 1814-15. His children were: Washington, Abigail and Mary.

Washington, 1806-1847 son of Isaac VanGilder, Jr., married Amy, daughter of James Mickel, and had five children: Ruth, Millicent, Aaron, Leaming and Eliza.

THE CORSON FAMILY*

“Who was the hero? you inquire;
Your Jersey ancestor, son
Descended from Holland sire.
The eldest Jacob Corson,
Who crossed Old Ocean's mile and mile
In sixteen thirty-four, son;
With household goods to Manhattan's Isle
And begat Nicholas Corson,
Who raised two sons to share his toil,
And they went to explore, son,
Discovered Seaville's sandy soil,
Bold John and Peter Corson.†

According to the Year Book of the Holland Society, “Pieter Corsen, of Breuckelen (Brooklyn), native, was among those who took the ‘oath of allegiance in King's County, in the Province of New York, the 26th, 27th, 28th and 29th of September, in the year of His Majesty's reign; Annoque Dominie 1687.’ ”

Peter and John Corson came from Long Island in a whale boat. They, becoming disgusted at the carrousal of those on board, in their own language, “could not stand such goings on,” therefore embarked in a yawl boat when off the coast of New Jersey, and landed in Cape May County, at what is known as Cellar's Creek

WESLEY M. E. CHURCH

The first Methodist preacher to visit these parts was Mr. James, who in 1780 came on horseback to the house of David Sayres in a driving snow storm and asked permission to stay all night. At this time the churches (in this vicinity) were connected with the Cumberland Circuit, embracing all of Cumberland and Cape May Counties.*

In 1796 Cape May County was formed into a circuit and added to the Philadelphia District.

So early as 1781 James Crowell preached in this county, he being succeeded by John Fidler, John McCloskey, Benjamin Abbott and others. The labors of these pioneers resulted in many conversions about the county. Among the early ones were Peter Corson's family in Upper township. After the county had been formed into a circuit, Richard Swain had charge of it. He was succeeded in following years by David Dunham and Caleb Morris. The circuit reached no farther down than Tabernacle Church, being part of the Salem itinerancy. There was preaching at different points in private residences and school houses,†

Cumberland Circuit was formed in 1807, and included all the southern and eastern portions of Cumberland county and a greater part of Cape May county. The preachers appointed to the circuit, many if not all of Wesley Methodist Episcopal church was organized in 1831, although there was a congregation formed prior to that date, services being held once each month in the school house by both the Methodists and the Baptists on alternate dates.

The story is told that for some reason both denominations met one Sunday at the same time. Both preachers announced their hymns, and Betsey Boon, who led the singing for the Methodist congregation, started the hymn and sang with such vigor as to drown out the Baptist singers. The Baptist preacher arose and said, "All ye that are with me, follow me," and with his flock retired to a neighboring house, where the service was continued.

1831 a plot of ground, being originally the Corson family burying ground, was purchasrd of Elias Corson and Peter Corson. Following is a copy of the deed for the ground:

Corson, Peter Corson, James Mickel and Thomas Peterson, and their successors in office forever, in trust that they shall erect and build, or cause to be erected and built thereon a house or place of worship for the Society in the neighborhood of Littleworth and its vicinity, being members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in further trust and confidence that they shall at all times forever permit such ministers or preachers belonging to the said church, as shall be duly authorized by the General Conference of the ministers or preachers of the said Methodist Episcopal Church, or by the Annual Conference, authorized by the said General Conference, to preach and expound God's Holy Word therein and also to permit at all times the members of the said Society being members of the Church aforesaid, to assemble at such hours and days as by them may be deemed expedient for the purpose of religious exercise. and in further trust and confidence that they shall set apart a portion of said premises for a grave yard, and permit at all times hereafter, such of the subscribers as shall have paid five dollars and upwards; toward said house and premises to bury the dead of their respective families in said burying ground, and when any one or Provided, nevertheless, that if the said trustees or their successors have advanced or shall advance any sum or sums of money on account of said premises, and they, the said trustees or their successors be obliged to pay the said sum or sums of money out of their own private funds, then they shall be authorized to raise the said sum or sums of money by a mortgage on the said premises, or by selling the said premises, after having given six months previous public notice thereof to said society or congregation, and if the money due be not raised and such sale take place, the said trustees, or their successors after paying the debt and other expenses which are due, from the money arising from such sale so deposited shall be at the disposal of said society or congregation, to the best of their judgment, and for their use in their society or congregational capacity, but in no case shall a mortgage be given or sale made of said premises, except for the cause, and under the restrictions aforesaid, nor the house and premises appropriated to any other uses than as afore specified. Soon after the purchase of the ground the church was built and was an appointment on the Cape May Circuit.

In 1832 William Foulk and Nathaniel Chew were appointed to the Circuit. They were followed in 1833 by John Henry and Joseph Ashbrook.

In 1834 Edward Stout and George Raybold were stationed on the Circuit, and in 1835 William Williams and J. W. McDougal were appointed as preachers on this charge.

In 1836 J. J. Sleeper and Thomas G. Stewart were appointed to the Circuit, and were re-appointed the following year. They were followed in 1838 by J. F. Crouch.

In 1839, with the exception of Bridgeton and a portion of the territory west of Cohansey, the Cumberland Circuit covered the whole of Cumberland and part of Cape May counties. On its northwest boundary lay Salem Circuit. Methodism had been early introduced, and long established through this region, and was then as now, the controlling form of religion in most of its territory.

In this year the Circuit was divided and the portion including Tuckahoe, Head of the River, Marshallville, Hawkinsville, Petersburg, Beasleys Point, and later, Seville, was known as the Atlantic Circuit.

In 1839 Joseph Atwood was appointed to this Circuit, his salary being $256, with $30 allowed for wood and table expenses.

Quarterly Conference voted that this Circuit should pay one-fourth part of the arrears of the Cape May Circuit for the past year, and unanimously elected Thomas VanGilder recording steward.

In 1840 David Duffel was appointed preacher in charge, and was returned to the Circuit the following year.

In 1841 Quarterly Conference chose Thomas VanGilder as a delegate to the Salem camp meeting, and it was voted to have "woods meeting" near Littleworth. It was also agreed to raise $65 for table expenses of the pastor, firewood, etc. It was decided to buy or build a parsonage at or near Williamsburg, the money to be raised by subscription.

In 1842 William A. Brooks was appointed pastor of this charge at a salary of $207, with $30 allowed for table expenses.

At the first Quarterly Conference held that year it was voted to hold a camp meeting near Littleworth, commencing August 1st; and that there be a boarding tent, under the direction of the class leaders. The committee of arrangements were: Richard Weatherby, Enoch Ingersoll, Andrew Smith, John M. Corson, John Stille, David Gandy, Samuel Parker, Emery D. Sise, Thomas Russell, Joseph J. Mickel, Thomas VanGilder and Allen Corson, Esq.

In 1843 Abraham Gearhart was appointed pastor, and was returned the two succeeding years.

In 1843 the trustees reported the debt on the parsonage to be about $225, and it was voted that subscriptions to liquidate this indebtedness should be received by John Stille and Thomas VanGilder. The pastor's salary was made $216, and the following year was increased to $224. In 1845 Littleworth's apportionment was $50.

In 1846 James White was appointed to the Circuit, at a salary of $366.

Thomas Christopher was in 1848 appointed pastor of the circuit, and was re-appointed the following year, with John W. Seran as assistant.

In 1848 the pastor's salary was made $369; later it was made $340 and horse's expenses, making it $380 in all.

John I. Corson was this year licensed by the Quarterly Conference as a local preacher. Thomas VanGilder resigned as recording steward and John I. Corson was appointed in his stead and held the office until September 15, 1849, when he resigned. The parsonage was sold for $300.

In 1850 and 1851 W. C. Nelson was pastor. He was followed in 1852 by William V. Darrow, who served two years at a salary of $400. His labors while on the charge were blessed in the conversion of more than one hundred souls.

As the congregation increased the capacity of the building was taxed until a more commodious building was necessary. In 1854 the old building was sold to Peter Corson and removed from the grounds and the present building was erected at a cos. of $3,200, Peter Corson being the contractor.

James H. Primrose became the pastor in 1854 and was returned to the charge in 1855 and died in March of that year. He was succeeded by Hamilton S. Norris, who was returned the following year.

In 1857 J. F. Morrell was appointed preacuer in charge, and the following year C. W. Heisley became pastor, with Matthias H. Shimp as assistant.

In 1859 Samuel Ashmead was appointed to supply the circuit.

In 1860 Levi J. Rhoads became the pastor, and was returned the following year.

H. B. Beegle was appointed to the charge in 1862 and was returned in 1863, with Joseph Lanning Roe as assistant. The pastors salary was $650, and the assistant's, $250, Petersburg's quota being $204.84.

In 1864 William Osborn was appointed preacher in charge, at a salary of $650, with John Bunyan Westcott as assistant, at a salary of $238.

In 1865 William B. Osborn was returned to the circuit, and William E. Greenbank was appointed as assistant.

E. H. Durell was appointed pastor of the charge in 1866.

In 1867 the circuit was again divided, and since that time the appointments have been as they now are---

Petersburg, Seaville and Beasleys Point. The new circuit was known as the Petersburg Circuit until 1893, when the name was changed to Seaville Circuit.

In 1867 Israel T. Woolson was appointed to supply the charge, and at the second Quarterly Conference, held May 17th, it was voted that his salary should be $425, with house rent and moving expenses, Petersburg's share being $215. At the fourth Quarterly Conference, held the following February, the board of stewards voted unanimously in favor of retaining Mr. Woolson for another year, but when Conference convened, Edwin Waters was appointed to the charge. The pastor's salary was then raised to $600, Petersburg's share being $348.54.

On February 27th, 1869, J. J. Mickel was appointed to confer with the Presiding Elder with regard to the appointment of a pastor, and Conference appointed Caleb Malsbury to the circuit. During his pastorate three members were added to the church.

At the Quarterly Conference held in April, 1869, the pastor's salary was fixed at $650, Petersburg's apportionment being $338.31.

In 1870 Mr. Malsbury was returned to the charge. Petersburg's quota for salary was $344.

In 1871 John Bunyan Westcott was appointed preacher in charge.

In 1872 Asbury Church was added to this circuit and Ezra B. Lake was appointed to the charge, at a salary of $800, of which Petersburg paid $284.23.

ate in 1876, in which thirty-three members were received into the church.

In 1879 Conference appointed I. N. Wilson to supply the charge. The church gained four members this year.

James Vansant became pastor of the charge in 1880 and was returned the next year. Twenty-one members were added to the church during his pastorate.

E. R. Brunyate became pastor in 1882 and served three years. He was followed by C. W. Livezey, who served three years.

In 1888 L. A. Bearmore was appointed preacher in charge, and remained two years.

In 1889 the apportionment of each church for pastor's salary was made equal---$233.33, and rent of parsonage.

In 1890 John Allen, Jr., became pastor and served for three years, during which time twenty-one members were received into full connection with the church.

Joseph Sandford Moore was appointed to the circuit in 1893, and four members were added to the church.

D. Everett VanDright was in 1905 appointed to the charge, and was returned the following year, and seven were added to the church during this time.

Robert N. Aspinwall, Jr., became the pastor in 1907. He served two years and was succeeded by Charles H. DuBois, who was appointed to supply the charge in 1909, and was returned the following year.

In 1911 the present pastor, Rev. William H. Luther, was appointed to the charge and was returned the following year, at a salary of $700. He was again returned in 1913, and his salary was increased to $750, Petersburg's share being $266.66. During his pastorate eleven have been received into full membership.

PETERSBURG M. E. SUNDAY-SCHOOL

Soon after the establishing of the church the Sunday-school was organized and sessions were held during the spring, summer and fall months. John M. Corson, Thomas VanGilder, Joseph J. Mickel, Richard T. Corson. Peter Godfrey and John Westcott held the office of superintendent for a number of years.

The first official record we find of the school is taken from the Quarterly Conference minutes of the Atlantic Circuit, as follows:

“Report of the numbers and state of the Sunday-schools on the Luckahoe Circuit for 1840:

Wesley M. House S. S.: one superintendent; six teachers; forty-four scholars; fifty volumes in library.”

From the same source under date of 1845:

“Littleworth: Superintendents, 1; teachers, 9; scholars, 66; volumes in library, 35.”

In 1868, the Sunday-school, under the superintendency of Peter Godfrey, was reported in fair condition; 23 officers; 90 scholars; and an average attendance of 75.

Previous to this year the school had been closed during the winter months, and the Quarterly Conference passed a resolution recommending that the schools on the circuit be kept open throughout the entire year, arrangements for which were made by each school. During the winter of 1870 the school discontinued its sessions, and this custom was again followed for several years.

The next record we find is dated 1873, when "The Petersburg Sunday-school, auxiliary to the Sunday-school Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and connected with the Quarterly Meeting Conference of the Petersburg Charge," was re-organized, and a constitution and by-laws was adopted.

The officers for that year follow:

Superintendent, Charles Henderson.

Assistant Superintendent, Augustus Corson.

Secretary, J. C. P. Smith.

Treasurer, Rachel E. Mickel.

Librarian and Assistant, Augustus Corson and Hollis P. Mickel.

Teachers, Hollis P. Mickel, James Hess. Somers Corson, Letitia Godfrey, Sarah Simpson, Rachel E. Mickel, Mary Williams, Rhoebe Rodan, Serena VanGilder and Eliza Corson.

Since that date the superintendents of the school have been:

Somers Corson, '74-9

Leaming Stephenson, '79-80

Stephen T. Young, '80-1

Leaming Stephenson, '81-92

Harrison J. Corson, '92-5

Hollis P. Mickel, '95-6

Leslie A. Corson, '96 (part)

Hollis P. Mickel, '96 (part) '97

William S. Eldridge, '97-04

Franklin V. Gandy, '04-09

Frederick S. Carter, '09-13.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

In 1844 land situated on what is now called the State Road, from Ocean City to Tuckahoe, was purchased of Stephen Young, Esq., and soon a Baptist Church, a branch from the Seaside Church, was erected thereon, Peter Corson being the contractor.

The church was dedicated in the following winter, and for a time was in a flourishing condition, but the building of the Baptist church at Tuckahoe and deaths and removals among its members drew from its support, and it was finally abandoned in about 1875. Later the building was sold to Daniel McKeague, who removed the lumber to Tuckahoe, where he built a wheelwright shop with part, the rest being destroyed at the time of the burning of the old Tuckahoe canning factory.

Among the pastors of the church were: Revs. Fendall, Cox, Sheppard, Fogg, Quinn, Jones, Hammett and Hall.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL

The original school house, now used as an out-building on the property owned and occupied by Mrs. Martha Brown, formerly stood a little north of the present school building, on what is now the playground. The money for its building was raised by subscription, each subscriber purchasing a number of shares. The ground on which it stood was deeded by Ezekiel VanGilder to those who contributed toward the building of the house. Following is a copy of the deed, taken from records in the office of the County Clerk:

At the time of the building of the new school house, in 1871, the township purchased of Edward Voss the plot of ground on which it stands. In 1909 this building was remodeled and another room added.

Lewis Wheaton brought from up Jersey a number of maple trees which were planted along the road. The one at the school house point was set out by Isaac VanGilder, and the one at the rear of the school house by Willis Young.

THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR*

On May 10th, 1775, Congress met in Philadelphia and voted that 20,000 men should take the field. The second New Jersey Provincial Convention met and directed that one or more companies of eighty men should be formed in each township or corporation.†

On August 5th Congress again assembled and directed that fifty-four companies of sixty-four minutemen each should be organized. The counties of Cape May and Cumberland were to have independent light infantry and rangers. On August 16th Cape May County's quota was raised to one battalion and one company of minutemen.

At the county election on September 21st, the following officers were elected by the people for the Cape May Battalion:

John Mackey, Colonel

Eli Eldridge, Major

Thomas Leaming, Jr., Adjutant.

On April 16, 1777, the members of the Second Company of the Cape May Battalion, which consisted mostly of men who lived in the upper section of the county, met and chose their officers. The certificate signed by the members of the company reads as follows:

*Data from Stevens' History of Cape May County, except as noted. †Ridpath.

Commissions dated April 16th, were given to the officers named. and at the same time a commission was given to Col. John Mackey, which was dated May 7th, 1777. Col. Mackey resigned March 27, 1778.

The uniform of the Cape May Minute Men was to be “hunting frocks to conform as near as may be to the uniforms of riflemen in the Continental service.”

The Minute Men entered into the following agreement:

“We, the subscribers, do voluntarily enlist ourselves a minute man in the company of....., in the County of Cape May, and do promise to hold ourselves in constant readiness, on shortest notice, to march to any place where our assistance may be required for the defence of this and any neighbor colony; and also to pay due obedience to the commands of our officers, agreeable to the rules and orders of the Continental Congress or the Provincial Congress of New Jersey, or during its recess, to the Committee of Safety.'

These men took precedence over other militia, and were entitled to be relieved at the end of four months, unless in actual service.

At the time of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, a committee was appointed to prepare a frame of government for the United States. This committee reported their work in July 1776. A month was spent in further debates, and then the question of adopting articles of union was laid over until the following spring. In April, 1777, the report was taken up and continued through the summer, and on November 15, 1777, a vote was taken in Congress and the Articles of Confederation were approved. The next step was to transmit the new frame of government to the several State legislatures for their adoption or rejection. The time thus occupied extended until June, 1778. The Articles of Confederation were signed by delegates of eight States on the 9th of July, 1778, and later in the month two others affixed their signatures. In November, the delegates of New Jersey acceded to the compact. In February, 1779, Delaware, and in March, 1791, Maryland added their signatures.*

MAIL SERVICE

The postoffice at Petersburg, according to data received from the Postoffice Department at Washington, D. C., was established on February 8, 1849. Previous to that time, Tuckahoe was the postoffice for this vicinity, and for the accommodation of the patrons hereabouts the Petersburg mail was forwarded to the store of Stephen Young, at the Lower Bridge, by the stage which ran from Cape May via Seaville, Lower Bridge, Tuckahoe and Mays Landing to Camden. After the establishing of the railroad from Camden to Cape May in 1863-4, the trains carried the Petersburg mail to Mount Pleasant station, from where they were carried by stage until in 1903 the Atlantic City Railroad secured the contract to carry the mails on its line.

Peter Corson was the first postmaster, appointed in 1849, at which time the name of the village was changed from Littleworth to Petersburg. He was followed in office in 1853 by Stephen Young, who held the office until 1856, when Peter Corson was again appointed. He was followed by Thaddeus VanGilder, who held the office until his death in 1881, when he was succeeded by his widow, Mrs. Hannah VanGilder. In 1882 William R. VanGilder was commissioned postmaster and held the office until 1885, when he was succeeded by Harrison J. Corson, who in 1887 was succeeded by Lillian F. Young, who resigned in the fall of 1908. The office was in charge of James S. Smith, assistant postmaster, until the following spring, when Mrs. Eva S. VanGilder received the appointment as postmaster.

THE RAILROAD*

The original survey of the railroad ran straight from Middletown to the Cedar Swamp Creek, crossing the Dennisville road about where the Killdeer Hill road branches off. Through the intercession of some of our townspeople the survey was changed to its present location.

The work of construction was commenced by the Philadelphia & Seashore Railway Company, and in 1891 tracks were laid as far south as Corson's Inlet. The following year the road was completed to Sea Isle City.

In 1892 the road was sold to the West Jersey Railroad Company, who operated it for about a year, when it was sold to the South Jersey Railroad Company, who, in 1889, sold the property to the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company.

In 1894 the Ocean City branch was constructed by Henry D. Moore, and in 1899 it was leased by the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, and has since been operated by the Atlantic City Railroad Company.

The Lower Bridge

In 1762 Joseph Corson, Isaac Baner, John Mackey, James Willits and "sundry other persons" had petitioned for a toll bridge over Cedar Swamp Creek at Fast Landing and the Assembly passed a law for its building.*

The following were the rates of toll:†

Wagon or ox cart with team and driver,	6 pence
Chaise or ox cart, passenger, horse, mare or gelding thereunto belonging,	4 pence
Every passenger with horse, mare or gelding,	2 pence
Foot,	1 pence
Cattle, led over, each;	1 pence
Sheep, led over,	1 Farthing

This was at first a draw bridge and was later rebuilt without a draw. Joseph Corson, who had a shipyard above the bridge, in order to get his vessels into the creek; tore away the bridge. After this had happened several times the bridge was so arranged that a middle section could be removed to admit of the passage up or down stream. In about 1845 the bridge was rebuilt without a draw.‡

The Upper Bridge

On November 21, 1788, an act was passed to build a bridge over Cedar Swamp Creek "from the lands of Job Young, on the southeast to the lands of John VanGilder on the northwest."* This bridge, like the Lower Bridge was arranged so that a section could be removed to permit vessels to pass.†

The Old Landing‡

Previous to the building of the meadow bank, the Cedar Swamp Creek had been open to navigation.

There was a wharf about a mile above the Upper Bridge where the schooners took on cedar "shooks;" for casks. This wharf is still standing in a sunken condition. It is located at the end of the "Old Landing road."

After taking on the shooks the schooners would run down the creek and around to Philadelphia, where they would load merchandise suitable for trade in the West Indies. When they arrived there they would exchange their merchandise for molasses, sugar, and Jamaica rum, loading it in the casks made for the purpose from the shooks which were carried south in bundles.

Mackey's Mill

The old saw mill on the Mackey Place is supposed to have been built by Col. John Mackey sometime between the years 1740 and 1757.

This was what was known as a tide mill. The property descended from Col. Mackey to his son, John Mackey, Jr., who sold it to Seth Hand, from whom it descended to Charles Hand, from whom it was purchased in 1825 by Stephen Young, Esq. In this mill Reuben Young met his death by being crushed by a falling log. The mill was operated as late as about 1850. but only the foundations now remain.

Smith's Mill

Smith's mill was first used as a wheelwright and paint shop by Roland Corson. In 1890 David VanGilder and Frank Smith joined with him and installed basket-making machinery and commenced the manufacture of truck baskets. In the fall of that year the saw mill was added. James S. Smith purchased the property in 1892, and for about three years continued the manufacture of baskets, since which time it has been used as a saw mill under the management of Joseph Camp, sawyer.

Creamer's Mill*

Benajah Tomlin, in 1800, purchased of James Willits 119 acres of land on Riggs' Branch, where he built the dam, and, it is supposed, erected the saw mill, as, when the tract was surveyed in 1802, it was known as the "Mill Property." After adding to this tract, he in 1820, sold to his son, Isaac, one half of the property, then as now containing 297 acres.

In 1821 Benajah and William Tomlin sold the remainder of this tract to Joseph Falkinburge for $125, and in 1822 Isaac Tomlin sold his share to Falkinburge, who at about that time rebuilt the mill and later sold it to Jacob Leaming, who in 1843 sold the property to Aaron Leaming.

In 1848 the property was purchased by Peter B. Hoff and Joseph Dorset, and in 1863 Mr. Hoff purchased of Dorset his share in the property.

The mill stood until 1874, when it was demolished and part of the timbers were used in building the barn on the Hoff place.

In this mill Jacob Creamer was sawyer for sixty years, and was followed in that capacity for a number of years by Ezekiel Stephenson.

California Mills*

In 1846 Peter Hoff built for Thomas VanGilder a saw mill on California Branch of Cedar Swamp Creek, which was run by an overshot and flutter wheel. The following year he built a grist mill adjoining the saw mill, the power being transmitted from the saw mill by a belt. Joseph Camp was first employed as sawyer at this mill and was followed in that capacity by Leaming Stephenson, and it is said the mills did a thriving business, as many as eighteen and twenty teams sometimes being seen waiting for their grist or lumber at one time.

About this time Mr. VanGilder erected three houses near the mills for the occupancy of those employed by him.

After the death of Thomas VanGilder, the property was purchased by Mrs. Hannah VanGilder and Mrs. Emeline Steelman, and the mills were operated by them for some time.

The mills and the remaining houses were burned by a forest fire in May, 1895.

VanGilder's Store†

VanGilder's store was established in about 1825 (the first record we have found is in the assessor's duplicate for 1827) by Thomas VanGilder, who commenced the business in a room of the old part of the house occupied by Mrs. Hannah VanGilder, which after the building of the present store building was used as a kitchen until the house was remodeled, when it was torn away.

*Data given by Mrs. Charles Caldwell and Mrs. Hannah VanGilder. †Data given by Mrs. Hannah VanGilder.

The present store building was built in about 1845, and as the demand for space increased, was added to, both front and rear, by Thaddeus VanGilder, who purchased the property about 1864, and continued the business until his death in 1881, when his widow, Mrs. Hannah VanGilder, succeeded him and remained in the business until 1905, with the exception of one year, in which her son, William R. VanGilder, was the proprietor. In 1906 the store was re-stocked by Wainwright & Sloan, who remained but a short time. In 1907 the store was again opened by Mrs. Eva VanGilder. Here from 1862 to 1885, and from 1909 to the present the postoffice was located.

The Philadelphia Store

The building known as the Philadelphia store was built by Thaddeus VanGilder, and was first occupied as a millinery store by Mrs. Priscilla Corson, and later as a grocery store by James Homan, James Brown, Cornelius Corson and Mrs. Elizabeth Hess, and has since been used for various purposes. In 1880 it was wrecked by a wind storm which blew down several other buildings, and was later rebuilt.

The Corner Store*

The Corner store was established by Peter Corson and Harrison Westcott. The first record is found in the assessor's duplicate for 1834, when it was assessed as the property of Peter Corson. The original store, now a part of the present building, was located where the Philadelphia store now stands, on ground which was leased of David Williams. Corson & Westcott sold the business to Rev. Thomas Christopher, who lived in the house adjoining, and he conducted the store until his death in 1850.

Peter Corsor then became the proprietor, and here the first postoffice was located. He moved the building to the opposite side of the street, and later sold the business to a man named DuBois, who came from up the State. He was succeeded in business by Francis Entriakin, who was followed by Cornelius Corson who kept the store for about a year, being succeeded by Somers Corson. The property was purchased by members of the family of Elmer Smith, and the store stood idle for about fifteen years, when, in 1881, it was re-stocked by the present proprietor, James S. Smith, who later moved it to its present location and enlarged the building.

RESIDENCES*

The house owned and occupied by William Westcott was built by Levi VanGilder, who purchased the property of Peter Corson and burned the brick of which it was built on the place. The frame part was added later, it being partly an old house which belonged to Peter Corson, which stood in front of the present house, and which was moved back and raised.

Robert C. Smith's residence was formerly the M. E. church, which, when the new church was built, was purchased by Peter Corson, who remodeled it into a double house. Here, at one time, the postoffice was located while Peter Corson was postmaster. He later sold the property to Peter VanGilder, of whom the present owner purchased it.

Frank Gandy's residence was built by Richard T. Corson, after the death of whose widow it was purchased by Mr. Gandy.

The house owned by Thomas Matthews was originally a part of the old brick house on the Westcott place, which was purchased by Seth Homan and moved to its present location. After the death of Mrs. Homan the property was purchased by James S. Smith, who later sold it to Mr. Matthews.

Mrs. Schurch's house was built in 1910.

The house owned by John Westney and occupied by Josiah Watson was built by Thaddeus VanGilder.

of William Westcott, about half-way down the Kildeer Hill road, probably soon after 1771 by Samuel Townsend, who in that year purchased the property of Joseph Corson. The first record of the house which we have found is that Levi VanGilder and wife began house-keeping in it in 1837, and Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, now 91 years of age, remembers it as an old house when she was a girl. It was a one-story house, and in 1855 Peter Corson moved it to its present location and added another story to it to be used as a dwelling for his wheelwright, William Hemsley, who lived in it for a time. James Homan purchased the house and ground on which it stands of Peter Corson and enlarged it by adding a room. In 1903 the present owner purchased the property and has since enlarged and improved the dwelling.

The house occupied by A. M. and H. G. Robbins was built on the site of a house which was built by George Blake of material which was taken from the old Seaside Baptist church, and which was burned. It is now the property of Mrs. Hannah VanGilder.

The house owned and occupied by John Lee was built by Peter Corson in about 1855 for a residence for his blacksmith, Lewis Dunn, who conducted a shop at the rear of the house.

The house occupied by Mrs. Lizzie Blake was built where John Westney's house now stands, by David Williams, and was moved to its present location by its builder, at whose death it became the property of his daughter, Mrs. Peter Godfrey, who lived in it until her death, when it was inherited by her daughter, Mrs. Fleta Lafferty.

The house owned by Tony Gannone was originally a part of a house built by Isaac VanGilder, which stood on the property owned by Mrs. Mary Mason, and was moved to its present location by William Hess who purchased the property.

The house owned and occupied by Benjamin Steelman was built by Peter Hoff for Enoch T. Godfrey in about 1864, and later a store was built and the old house adjoining, belonging to John VanGilder was purchased and torn away. Mr. Godfrey conducted a general store for a time and sold the property to Charles Hess, who continued the store business for some time. The store was destroyed by fire in 1875. The present owner purchased the property of Charles Hess.

The house occupied by Walter Freestone was built by Milton and Francis Hess for their mother. It is now the property of Washington VanGilder.

The house owned by Fred Williams was built by Washington Young, who sold it to its present owner.

Mrs. Martha Brown's residence was built by Willis Young.

The house occupied by Clarence Sack was built by Isaac Williams. It was purchased by Manlief Steelman, and is now owned by his daughter, Mrs. Mary Mason.

The house belonging to Winton Smith and occupied by Lewis Corsaboon was built by Washington VanGilder, Sr., and after his death passed through the ownership of Leaming VanGilder to the present owner.

Harry Bates' house stands on the site of two other houses, the first being built by John VanGilder, Sr., the second by John VanGilder, Jr., and the present house by Clinton Palmer. The property was purchased by the Petersburg Development Company, of whom Mr. Bates purchased it.

Richard Voss built the house in which he lives, building the part next to the school house first and later adding to it.

Mrs. Elizabeth Williams' house was built by her father, William Boon.

The house owned by the estate of Ebenezer Brown, Sr., and occupied by Harry Butler, was built by Isaac French, at the death of whose widow it was purchased by Mr. Brown.

George Eldridge's house was built by James Homan, and passed through the ownership of Jesse Green and Thomas Hess to the present owner.

The house owned by Mrs. Mary Holmes was built by Jonathan Holmes on land purchased of John Van-Gilder.

Albert C. Butler's house originally stood on property now owned by the heirs of Somers Gandy, from where it was moved to Middletown, and stood near where Dr. W. L. Yerkes' house now stands. It was sold to Henry Harper, who in turn sold it to William S. Eldridge, of whom Mr. Butler purchased it, and removed it to its present location, on property purchased of Warren Van-Gilder.

James Sharp's residence was built by Hezekiah Corson, who sold it to Mr. Sharp.

Rinaldo Groom's house was built by John Mickel, who sold the property to Emley Corson and in 1846 moved to Illinois. Mr. Corson for a time conducted a grocery store on the property.

The house in which Miss Sallie Corson lives was built by her father, Griffing Corson.

The house belonging to David Cresswell was built by Reuben Corson and sold to Joseph Young, at whose death it became the property of his daughter, who married Mr. Cresswell.

The central part of William R. VanGilder's residence was built by Thomas VanGilder. This was afterward raised and the rear built to by Thaddens VanGilder, and later the present owner built to the front.

The original house on Mrs. Creamer's property was built by Hezekiah Corson, and was purchased by her husband, Charles Creamer, who tore it away, and using some of the timber of the old house, built the present residence.

B. F. Willits, in 1865, built the house adjoining Hollis P. Mickel, and sold it to Thomas VanGilder, who built an addition to the north end, to be used as a parsonage. In 1878 or 1879 Hollis P. Mickel purchased the house and lived therein for a time, later removing to his present location.

The residence of Mrs. Hannah VanGilder was built by Jacob Baner, who sold the property in 1810 to John VanGilder. The property descended to his son, Thomas VanGilder, from whom it was purchased by the late Thaddens VanGilder, who added to and improved the property.

The original house, which is the rear part of the present house on the Vasant place was built by John VanGilder, Jr. From him it was inherited by Robert Mckel, and passed through the ownership of Cornelius Corson to Levi Corson, who lived there until his death in about 1863, and after him, Edwards Corson resided on the property, which was purchased by Rev. James Vansant in 1882; and he lived there until his death in 1893, when the property passed to his son, J. Alpheus Vansant, who sold it to James Ingersoll in 1908.

The first record we have found of the property owned by Anelio Reginio dates back to 1773, when it was deeded by David VanGilder to Jeremiah VanGilder. In 1809 it was purchased by Joseph Wheaton; who in 1816 sold it to Somers Corson; in 1822 he sold it to Aaron Corson, who in 1831 sold to Warren VanGilder, and he in 1833 to Reuben Corson, who later sold to Marcellus Forbes, a shoemaker by occupation, who came from Maryland. He in 1856 sold the property to James Hess, who repaired it and built an addition to it. He sold to Jerome Tatem, who traded the property with Jeremiah Wilson, of Philadelphia. The property was purchased by William Matthews at a tax sale, and not being redeemed, was sold by him to Anelio Reginio, the present owner.

The property known as the Madara place was part of the purchase of Joseph Corson from the West Jersey Society in 1774, which he conveyed to Abraham VanGilder in 1745, who sold it to Samuel Townsend in 1771, of whose heirs it was purchased by Constantine Corson in 1801. He in 1802 sold the property to William Miller, who sold it to James Smith, and he to John F. Westcott, of whom it was purchased by Charles Madara, whose heirs sold it to Charles F. Gaskill.

A house known as the "Aunt Abbie" house which stood adjoining R. C. Smith's residence, formerly belonged to Elias Corson and stood on the land between the properties of Frank Gandy and John Lee, from where it was moved. The house was torn down and for years the old well, which was recently filled in, was all that was left to mark the place.

Jeremiah Robinson built the house known as the Chattin house, which after his death Thomas VanGilder moved from what is known as the Robinson lot to its present location.

The house adjoining the Red Men's Hall, occupied by Italians, was built by Thaddeus VanGilder, on the site of a house which was owned by Mrs. Kinsey, who sold the property to Thomas Ross. Thaddeus VanGilder purchased the property of Mr. Ross and sold the house, which was moved to Seaville.
